Lock down Birthday

- Home-made banners.
- Design an Escape Room (see links).
- Bake a cake.
- PJ/Movie Day.

Make the most of your time together as a family.

Children and young people will love spending time with you. In every day life, we are often rushing here and there. When children and young people do not behave in the way they expect, there can be various reasons for this.

Behaviour which you might feel is deemed as 'attention seeking' or the need to be noticed may mean your child is needing a little extra support. By connecting and spending time together, provides the reassurance they need, in these difficult times, that they belong and can handle what comes. Maybe do some fun activities together? See the one that one family made, with the different hand prints! We think this is beautiful!

Routine is important for the wellbeing of everyone, including children. Why not make a daily schedule to include time for reflection?

Tips for Dealing with Tantrums

Remember to set clear rules, show affection and look after yourself. If you're feeling at the end of your tether, Take 5 and follow these simple steps:

- Stop.
- Breathe.
- React calmly.

Things to use to try and calm them down:

- Create a distraction using something like a book.
- Draw their attention to something else happening nearby.
- If they're angry, tell them you know how they feel.

1. Keep Doing Things You Love

Whilst we may not be able to keep doing all the things you love, keep hold of the things you can do, and the joy they can bring. Music? Play your favourite songs. Like to play board games? Brilliant, no one has an excuse not to play! Favourite Toys? More time to play!

Keep holding on to the things you love that bring you joy. Harry Potter marathon anyone??

2. Baking!

Why not find the recipe for your favourite treat, whether that's a jammy dodger or maltesers, and see if you can recreate that at home?

3. Exercise

Whether it's dancing, doing P.E with Joe Wicks, or doing stretches, make sure your body is active. Exercise is a really good stress buster and also is a good way to show off new moves you may have learnt!

4. Learn Something New!

Try learning how to do something new. Whether that's picking up the keyboard you had never got around to learning, or drawing your favourite cartoon character. Maybe set it up as a co-challenge with a friend so you can check in with each other and encourage each other? You could even do a talent show with the whole family if you all put your minds on a new skill!

Grounding Activities

Grounding is a technique that helps us bring us to into the present moment. At times where we are anxious and worried, grounding techniques can help bring you back to the here and now, and manage feelings which can feel overwhelming. Below are a few Grounding Techniques.

1. 5 – 4 – 3 – 2 – 1:

This can help you bring your attention back to the current by focusing on your senses! Why not try and liven it up a bit, with creating things for you to see, making sensory objects you can touch, using make-shift musical instruments for you to hear, and baking goods you can smell and taste?

2. Holding Something in Your Hands

Stress balls, playdough, and slime can be really handy! It can help us to focus (especially when you find yourself fidgeting), as by focusing on the object, it can take away our focus on things that might be making us a little bit stressed or worried! You can squeeze it, stretch it, twist it and it can help us focus and help our muscles relax a little! Take a look at recipes for home-made playdough if you have not got a stress ball, such as this one <https://www.bbcgoodfood.com/howto/guide/play-dough-recipe>, or if you want more of a challenge, on the next page is a recipe to make your own slime!

3. Mindful Eating

This is a really useful technique. I usually do this with sweets in wrappers, but mix it up. Why not try my all-time favourite recipe for brownies, which is included within the next pages?

- Focus on how the sweet looks in its wrapper. Also think about how it feels in your fingers.
- Focus on how the noise it makes as you take the sweet out of the wrapper.
- Smell the sweet and feel how it feels out of the wrapper.
- Put the sweet in your mouth and don't chew! Focus on how it tastes and feels in your mouth.
- Finally (phew!), chew the sweet and think about how it tastes, sounds and feels, as you chew away!

Slime recipe UK

1. 150ml of pva or clear glue in a bowl.

2. Couple drops of the food colouring of your choice. Add to the bowl and mix with the glue.

3. 1 heaped tsp of bicarbonate of soda, mix in.

Slime in 2mins!

4. The key ingredient! Eye lens solution, any brand will do but look at the ingredients MUST contain boric acid/sodium borate in order for the correct reaction to occur.

5. Add the eye lens solution a tea spoon at a time and mix in, it will start to form a ball, add more a tea spoon at a time until less sticky. You want need more than a few spoons. Lift from bowl and work it in with your hands. Until stickiness gone. Add a splash more if necessary.

Recipe for Brownies

NSPCC

Brought to you by the NSPCC Peterborough Service Centre

What you need:

200g dark chocolate

175g butter (or butter substitute)

325g caster sugar

130g plain flour

3 eggs

Step One:

Preheat the oven to 170 degrees. Line a baking tray (preferably a 23 x 5 baking tray) with greaseproof paper (I usually then butter the paper to be on the safe side!)

Step Two:

Break the chocolate into small chunks. Melt the butter and chocolate in a saucepan of simmering water. Leave until melted and smooth.

Step Three:

Remove from the heat. Add the sugar and stir until it is well mixed.

Step Four:

Add the flour and stir so it is all mixed.

Step Five:

Finally, stir in the eggs and mix until thick and smooth.

Step Six:

Cook for 30 to 35 minutes. Flaky on the top but soft in the centre. Be careful not to overcook, you don't want the edges to be hard and crunch!

Step Seven:

Eat the brownies!

Thank You!
